

150,000 HAVE PERISHED.

THE AWFUL FAMINE IN DEPOU-LATING FAIR CURA.

Spanish Newspapers in Havana Print the Terrible Records Sent to Them by Correspondents in Various Parts of the Island—Blanco No Better Liked Than Weyler.

HAVANA, Nov. 6.—From Sagua, Santa Clara province, a Spanish correspondent writes to the Diario de la Marina:

"The spectacle of misery and starvation among the reconcentrados is beyond description. They are heaped in the large barracks sugar warehouses, where they are dying by scores. A family numbering twenty-five persons has been reduced to two by death. There is only one coffin in which to place the bodies and send them to the cemetery. It goes and comes on its ghastly work. Smallpox, cholera, and all the diseases of the tropics are the most horrible facts about the situation are not allowed to be reported."

Another Spanish correspondent writes to the same newspaper from Matanzas: "Dona Josefa Mariell y Perez, a widow, 60 years of age, has committed suicide here by hanging herself in her home. She was the wife of a Mexican engineer, a countryman, has also killed himself. On the Congo estate, a native from this city, Jose Fundora y Acosta hanged himself from a tree. All these suicides were caused by despair resulting from hunger."

"The fate of Federico Munoz y Benitez is even more pathetic. He is a poor man living with two sons in his home. He is now in the city of starvation. His poverty was so great that he could not even get a piece of bread for them in the streets, as he was entirely destitute of clothing. He hung himself, and the bodies of himself and his sons were found by a guerrilla force that passed by."

From Cardenas another Spanish correspondent writes: "Two women perished from hunger here to-day on the main street. Hundreds and hundreds of adults and children are dying here day after day in their miserable dwellings."

Another Spanish correspondent, writing to the same Spanish newspaper from Santa Domingo, Santa Clara, says:

"In a town like this, only 4,500 inhabitants. It is horrible to think that no less than fifty persons are dying every day. The cause of so many deaths is fever and hunger, principally hunger. No one is able to describe what is occurring here. The bodies of the dead remain unburied, and their bodies are thrown out in the open country, because there is no place for them in the cemetery. A miserable man has been reared a half mile from the town, and it is called a hospital."

"There is room for only twelve beds and yet 100 smallpox patients are crowded into the wretched place."

The change from Weyler to Blanco has as yet brought no relief, and it probably will bring none, as Gen. Blanco, however praiseworthy his intentions, has no means of remedying the desperate condition of things that Weyler left on the island.

From the date of the death of the families, which was sent to the St. N. Y. in September, until the present time, 150,000 persons have died of hunger in Cuba. There is not the least exaggeration in this report.

In Havana a Spanish official named Carreras conceived the idea of compelling the students of the university to contribute to the relief of the university. Carreras, a student of the university, conceived the idea of compelling the students of the university to contribute to the relief of the university. Carreras, a student of the university, conceived the idea of compelling the students of the university to contribute to the relief of the university.

THEY ACCLAIMED WEYLER.

His Reception at Girona, Cuba, Displeases the Spanish Ministry.

Special Cable Dispatch to the St. N. Y.

MADRID, Nov. 10.—Considerable uneasiness has been caused in Ministerial circles by a fact which has just come to the knowledge of the Government. It appears from a despatch received by the Ministry that while the steamer Montserrat, on which Gen. Weyler and his staff are returning to Spain, was repairing at Girona, Cuba, the disaffected officers of the army, who gave out the second day after leaving Havana, Gen. Weyler went ashore, where the populace received him with cheers.

The authorities gave their sanction to the turning out of thearrison in honor of the deposed Captain-General, who, when he appeared on shore, was greeted by a crowd of men, many of whom were armed with revolvers and pointed guns. They were very enthusiastic over the visit of Weyler. They removed the horses from his carriage and themselves dragged the vehicle to the barracks.

DISCONTENTED WITH BLANCO.

His Subordinates Are Already Showing Their Disaffection for His Plans.

HAVANA, via Key West, Nov. 10.—Gen. Blanco's subordinates are already manifesting their discontent. Gen. Blanco has called today for Spain, because he does not agree with the plans of the new Captain-General.

The Cubans are very active in Santa Clara, Havana, and Pinar del Rio. At Jaraco, Havana, a Spanish military train has been blown up by dynamite by the insurgents, killing and wounding many Spanish soldiers. The wounded were brought today to the capital.

WEYLER'S ORDER REVOKED.

Relief for the Reconcentrados in Cuba Who Have Been Mutilated in the Towns.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The State Department received officially today the gratifying news that the Spanish Government had granted the wish of President McKinley, expressed through Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, the United States Minister at Madrid, that the concentration order of Weyler, which caused so much distress in Cuba, be revoked. By the terms of the order all persons were directed to concentrate in the cities and towns on the island. As nearly all the able-bodied men and boys had joined the patriot forces, the order applied only to old men, women, and children. They were obliged to share their tents and other means of livelihood to huddle together in the large communities, where food was scarce. After while no food was given to them, and they died by the score from starvation. The absence of sanitary arrangements in the thickly settled towns and the reconcentrados caused many deaths.

PRIEST'S STRANGE DEATH.

THE BODY OF FATHER M'FARE FOUND IN AN AREAWAY.

He Was a Curate in a Philadelphia Church, and Was Found Dead at a Parochial School, with His Clothing Torn—The Coroner's Physician Says He Died of Uremia.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—The Rev. Henry J. M'Far, a young curate of the Roman Catholic Parish of the Annunciation, was found dead at an early hour this morning in the yard of St. Paul's church, where he was employed as a teacher.

It is understood that Col. Cook had been subjected to great pressure in an attempt to revoke his order. He said this afternoon that he not only regarded the sport as dangerous, but that it was only proper that he should take this course out of deference to the Legislature. The drives inside the post have already been closed to cyclists, and this football restriction causes a protest from those interested. The last hope of the players has been destroyed, and football has been proscribed for good and all.

CINCINNATI LEGISLATORS OPPOSED TO ANTI-FOOTBALL LEGISLATION.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 10.—The fourteen newly elected legislators of Hamilton county were interviewed to-day on the question of football legislation. Almost unanimously they opposed any action that would interfere with the sport, for which several acknowledged a fondness scarcely diminished since their college days.

M'GILL MAY PROHIBIT FOOTBALL.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Nov. 10.—The authorities of McGill University, it is said, are considering the propriety of prohibiting the students in consequence of the rough play of teams visiting Montreal.

"BATHHOUSE JOHN" TO THE RESCUE

He Is Going to Another Chicago's Anti-Football Ordinance with Bids.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—"Bathhouse John" Coughlin, Alderman from the First ward, which is also represented in the Council by "Dinky Dick" is going to have all kinds of fun with Alderman Plott's anti-football ordinance when it comes before the Council. He is going to make a speech in which he will say that the ordinance is a "stupid" and "foolish" thing, and that it is a "violation of the rights of the people."

The dead priest's coat was lying in the yard. His waistcoat was torn open. On his shoulders was a towel, which was covered with blood. The body was found in a narrow alleyway, and the body was found in a narrow alleyway, and the body was found in a narrow alleyway.

The police promptly began an investigation on the spot. The body was found in a narrow alleyway, and the body was found in a narrow alleyway, and the body was found in a narrow alleyway.

NO FOOTBALL AT FORT M'PHERSON.

Col. Cook Closes the Gates Out of Deference to the Georgia Authorities.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 10.—When the bill was passed by the House of the Georgia Legislature last week, prohibiting the playing of football in the State, the enthusiasts in the game looked to the United States post, and at a distance of about five miles from Atlanta, as a solution to their difficulties.

Many acres of ground surrounding the fort under Federal law are exempt from the jurisdiction of State courts. If the football players were so inclined they could play there so long as the military authorities did not interfere. They regarded the sport as dangerous, but that it was only proper that he should take this course out of deference to the Legislature. The drives inside the post have already been closed to cyclists, and this football restriction causes a protest from those interested.

LIFE TO SAVE HER OWN.

On the Witness Stand in a Crowded Courtroom the Details of the Betrayal of Goldensmuss's Confession That He Lured Him to His Death—Did It Because He Feared Her Latest Lover, Who "Wanted Willie's Head"—Having Betrayed Thorn, She Tearfully Asks That He Be Released "Because of God and the People"—A Most Dramatic Scene in the Great Criminal Trial—Thorn Apparently Unmoved by the Description of His Accomplishment—Thorn's Counsel to Put Him on the Stand—He May in Turn Confess and Accuse His Betrayer of the Murder—A Juror's Illness Complicates Matters and May Cause a Mistrial.

After four months of terrible mental agony, with the burden of a great crime upon her conscience, the will of Mrs. Augusta Nack has at last been broken and she has told the story of William Goldensmuss's death. Before a Judge and jury, under the eyes of the man she once loved, she told the story of her betrayal. She told it all and almost without a quiver. Once she did falter, and then, for a moment, she went from point to point in the bloody trail that did not seem possible to those who heard her that she should have been the woman to have confessed as she confessed she did. The story as told was almost as remarkable as the tragedy itself.
